I—DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS. By direction of the President, under the provisions of the Act of Congress approved, 9 July 1918, the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism in action against an enemy is awarded to:

Master Sergeant Lee E. Copeland, RA15203196, (then Corporal), United States Army, while a member of the 1st Battalion, 8th Cavalry Regiment, distinguished himself by extraordinary heroism in connection with military operations against an armed enemy on 22 July 1950, in the vicinity of Yongdong, Korea. When an enemy force of great strength launched a fanatical banzai attack against the 1st Battalion, Sergeant Copeland displayed great initiative and unfaltering fortitude as a platoon gunner. While his platoon withdrew to better ground, he held his position and started firing his machine gun into enemy forces. As the enemy turned artillery and mortar fire upon him, he dashed from spot to spot carrying his machine gun, stopping in each new position to fire his carbine and toss grenades while waiting for the machine gun barrel to cool sufficiently to resume firing. Sergeant Copleland's effectiveness and heroic action enabled the platoon time to withdraw and set up a new defense. He then fought his way back into the Company perimeter where he continued to lend supporting fire and helped to organize the defense during the 5-hour grueling attack. His leadership, courage, and exemplary conduct were an inspiration to the members of the Company and spurred them to victory despite the overwhelming disadvantages. Sergeant Copeland's outstanding performance and heroic action reflect great credit upon himself and the military service.

Private Jackson was participating in an armored personnel carrier driver training exercise when the amphibious vehicle he was driving was caught in the rapid current of the Hantan River. As the vehicle was swept downstream and struck a rock, a fellow soldier was thrown into the treacherous river. Knowing that the soldier could not swim, Private Jackson immediately, and with complete disregard for his own personal safety, jumped out of the driver's hatch and into the river to aid him. In his attempt to rescue his comrade, he was caught in the strong current and disappeared beneath the water. Specialist Haubrich was on a routine cross country field training exercise over rugged and hazardous terrain covered with several feet of snow when the lead sergeant of the trail breaking party was suddenly caught in a snow avalanche which carried him down the side of a mountain and buried him under heavy snow. Without hesitation or regard for his own life, and despite the warnings of another member of the party, Specialist Haubrich, laden with skis, rucksack, and field gear, swiftly jumped into the snow slide to assist the trapped sergeant. This rapid action enabled him to retain sight of the sergeant, who, with the exception of one hand, was buried completely under the snow and unable to move either of his arms when the slide subsided. He then quickly and persistently dug a 2½-foot passage to the victim's face and cleared the throat which was packed with snow to prevent suffocation. After much difficulty in digging the sergeant out of the snow, he rendered first aid treatment and accompanied him until he was out of danger. Specialist Haubrich's initia-
