BACKGROUND AND RESPONSIBILITIES FOR ARMY IMPLEMENTATION OF HOMELAND SECURITY PRESIDENTIAL DIRECTIVE-12

Background

HSPD-12 mandates a government-wide standard for secure and reliable forms of identification issued by the Federal Government to its employees and contractor personnel. The CAC is the DoD Federal personal identity verification credential. In accordance with U.S. Office of Personnel Management and Under Secretary of Defense guidance (references 7 and 8, respectively), initial CAC issuance will include a CAC-eligibility determination, verification of affiliation from an authoritative data source, favorable completion of a fingerprint check with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, verification of a claimed identity, and submission of a NACI (or equivalent investigation) to the Office of Personnel Management. Furthermore, to retain a CAC, Army military, civilian, and contractor personnel must receive a favorably adjudicated NACI or equivalent investigation.

Army military, civilian and contractor personnel are subject to the HSPD-12 credentialing requirements. Special considerations apply to non-U.S. citizens as described in references 7 and 8.

By ensuring that all Army military, civilian and contractor personnel are vetted to a common standard before issuance of a CAC, HSPD-12 implementation supports a broader Army effort to improve the protection of its personnel, installations, networks and information from potential "insider threats." This broader effort is outlined in The Army Plan (reference 13).

If at any time during employment or service, an Army Soldier, civilian or contractor is found to not meet HSPD-12 credentialing standards, or determination is made that the individual's possession of a CAC poses an unacceptable risk as defined in reference 7, the individual's CAC may be revoked.
