I. DISTINGUISHED-SERVICE MEDAL.—1. By direction of the President, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved 9 July 1918 (WD Bul. 49, 1918), the Distinguished-Service Medal for exceptionally meritorious and distinguished service in a position of great responsibility during the period indicated is awarded to the following-named officer:

Brigadier General George E. Martin, United States Army. 25 July 1952 to 5 July 1953.

2. By direction of the President, under the act of Congress approved 9 July 1918 (WD Bul. 43, 1918), the Distinguished-Service Medal (second Oak-Leaf Cluster) for exceptionally meritorious and distinguished service in a position of great responsibility during the periods indicated is awarded to the following-named officers:

Lieutenant General Reuben E. Jenkins, United States Army. 9 August 1952 to 13 October 1953.

Major General Edwin L. Sibert, United States Army. 5 January to 15 October 1953.

II. SILVER STAR.—By direction of the President, under the act of Congress approved 9 July 1918 (WD Bul. 43, 1918), the Silver Star for gallantry in action on the dates indicated is awarded to the following-named officer and enlisted man:

First Lieutenant Ham Jin Oh, Infantry, Republic of Korea Army, distinguished himself by gallantry in action in the vicinity of Kumwha, Korea, on 30 and 31 October 1952. His company was ordered to counterattack Hill 598 and restore the friendly lines. The crest of the hill was under direct enemy observation and was well zeroed in by enemy guns. But despite heavy enemy fire and the large number of casualties which it inflicted upon the company, Lieutenant Ham, exhibiting extraordinary leadership, inspired his men to make determined efforts to gain the objective. Reaching the crest of the hill, he reorganized his men, and since three of his platoon leaders were killed and the other wounded, he took command of three platoons and ordered his executive officer to lead the other. Supported by heavy artillery fire, fresh enemy troops stormed their positions and engaged in hand-to-hand combat with the stubborn defenders. Although the morale of his troops was steadily decreasing because of heavy casualties and enemy superiority in strength, they continued to fight determinedly, inspired by the selfless and gallant acts of Lieutenant Ham. Despite wounds received during this action, he again joined in the attack, hurling grenades at the enemy and moving through the area encouraging his men until the explosion of an enemy shell rendered him unconscious and his company was ordered to withdraw. The selfless devotion to duty, outstanding leadership, and persistent courage displayed by Lieutenant Ham reflect great credit on himself and the Republic of Korea Army.

Caporal Chef Georges Vuillermet, Infantry, Army of the Republic of France, a member of First Company, French Battalion, attached to the 23d Infantry Regiment, 2d United States Infantry Division, distinguished himself by gallantry in action against the enemy near Sat'ae-ri, Korea, on the night of 11 and 12 October 1951. His platoon was issued a flame thrower for a night attack on Hill 851, the last remaining concentration of enemy strength on Heartbreak Ridge. Caporal Chef Vuillermet moved out with the flame-thrower operator to the fanatically defended hostile positions, where two enemy bunkers were quickly eliminated. Although wounded during this action, he returned with the flame-thrower operator, now out of fuel, and led his squad in the assault against the second enemy line of resistance on Hill 851. He charged ahead through intense enemy fire into a trench occupied by a squad of enemy troops. Despite the tremendous odds against him, Caporal Chef Vuillermet engaged the foe in close combat, utilizing hand grenades to completely annihilate the enemy. His courageous and inspiring actions materially contributed to the success of his platoon in securing its objective with a minimum of casualties. The selfless devotion to duty and courage displayed by Caporal Chef Vuillermet reflect great credit on himself and the Army of the Republic of France.

Second Lieutenant Keith R. Kerr, Signal Corps, United States Army, a member of the 833d Signal Service Company, distinguished himself by heroism at Bas Samois, France, on 14 July 1953. After being involved in a collision in which one of the vehicles plunged down a precipitous embankment into the Seine River, he observed that the driver was trapped in the rapidly sinking vehicle and in dire distress. Unhesitatingly, he pushed his way through heavy undergrowth covering the steep slope and jumped fully clothed into the swift and polluted water of the Seine River, which was particularly turbulent at that point, in a heroic effort to extricate the man from the car. While calling words of encouragement as he swam in the darkness to the rescue of the helpless man, and guided only by his screams for help, Lieutenant Kerr was either stricken by a cramp or exhausted by his valiant efforts when he disappeared from sight and drowned. Lieutenant Kerr's prompt and courageous action, with complete disregard for his personal safety, and self-sacrifice in his valiant attempt to save a human life reflect the highest credit on himself and the military service.

VI..SOLDIER'S MEDAL.—By direction of the President, under the act of Congress approved 2 July 1926 (WD Bul. 8, 1926), the Soldier's Medal for heroism not involving actual conflict with an enemy on the date indicated is awarded to the following-named enlisted man:

Private First Class Stanley W. Bryn, Artillery, United States Army, a member of Battery B, 506th AAA Gun Battalion, distinguished himself by heroism at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, on 8 July 1952. While performing his duties in the mess hall, he heard a loud explosion and observed flames coming from a nearly 90-mm gun revetment. One round of 90-mm ammunition, which was stored with twenty-one other rounds, was accidentally exploded. Private Bryn immediately left the mess hall with a bucket of water and attempted to extinguish the burning ammunition boxes. After making two additional trips to the fire barrel for water, he remained in the revetment until the blaze was extinguished. The prompt and courageous action taken by Private Bryn in the face of grave danger reflects distinct credit on himself and the military service.
